Blanco's award winning sequel, Please Stop Laughing at Us . . . One Survivor's Extraordinary Quest to Prevent School Bullying (BenBella Books), was written in response to the demand for more information from her core audience—teens, teachers, parents and other Adult Survivors of Peer Abuse like herself, who have come to know Blanco as the champion of their cause. It provides advice and solutions set against the backdrop of her dramatic personal and professional journey as the survivor who unexpectedly finds herself the country's most sought-after anti-bullying activist.

In addition to her books, Blanco's unprecedented approach to shifting the social dynamic of America's schools is saving lives and making headlines throughout the United States. She's presented *It's NOT Just Joking Around!*TM, her acclaimed anti-bullying program, to a combined audience of over five-hundred thousand students, teachers and parents nationwide at the behest of such entities as The United States Department of Interior, The United States Department of Justice, The National Catholic Educational Association, The Illinois Association of School Boards and scores of local school districts, many of whom are adopting her initiatives as part of their core bullying prevention curriculum. It's NOT Just Joking Around! has also generated tens of thousands of dollars in grant awards for schools and organizations coast to coast.

Blanco has successfully intervened in numerous bullying related attempted suicides and acts of student retaliation. She is a respected crisis management consultant and expert witness in the areas of school violence and peer abuse, and is frequently called upon by the media as an expert interview. Some of the outlets who have turned to her for commentary include Newsweek, USA Today (front page story), CNN, NBC, FOX, "The Joy Behar Show", "The John Walsh Show" and National Public Radio. She is the go-to expert on bullying related breaking stories for HLN's "Prime News with Mike Galanos," "Issues with Jane Velez Mitchell", "Nancy Grace," among many other of the nation's top news shows. Blanco has bylined articles for CNN.com (front page), was the focus of an in-depth front-page Q&A on Oprah.com, and her life story has been featured in Parade, Teen Newsweek, USA TODAY, Teen Guideposts, Hispanic, The Chicago Tribune, The St. Petersburg Times, hundreds of local daily newspapers across the United States and is part of a permanent exhibit at the Chicago National Historical Society.

A tireless advocate for the shunned and forgotten student, Blanco's rare understanding of why kids abuse other kids comes from a deep personal place. From fifth grade through the end of high school, she was rejected and tormented by her peers simply for being different and knows first-hand what it's like to contemplate retaliation. As an adult, she decided to go public with her story because she was frustrated by society's misconceptions about the true cause of the school tragedies such as the Columbine shooting, the Phoebe Prince suicide, and countless other examples that put into stark light the tragic consequences of school bullying.

Since the release of Please Stop Laughing At Me . . ., Blanco has committed her life to turning her pain into purpose. Inspired by the thousands of letters and requests she receives for help, she travels around the country sharing her story of forgiveness and triumph. One of the most sought-after keynote speakers and seminar presenters, Blanco's anti-bullying initiatives are redefining the scope of possibilities for curbing suffering in our schools worldwide.

Blanco's work has been published in Japanese, Greek, Danish and Arabic. She lives in the suburbs of Chicago with her husband and family. Both of her books are available on audio.
